There is something harder to face than death, and that is the realization of failure and misdirected effort and wrong doing.

TWO BLOND CHUMS.

—IT is imprudent to follow up an acquaintance made in that way. It is never safe to speak with persons to whom one has not been introduced.

—He is not too old. —That depends upon the custom among your friends but generally it is untrue.

—Under the circumstances you mention it would be correct.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE.—We are two girls—clumsies of 18. —It would be improper for a girl to correspond with a young man of 26, whose acquaintance was made on the train, if the letters are just nice, friendly ones. —It is a young man of 28 too old for a girl of 18 to marry if she really and truly loves him. —Do you think it would be improper for a girl to accept a class pin from an especially good boy friend on her birthday? —Children gift. —Would it be considered wrong for a girl or boy or several girls and boys to go out riding in the afternoon if they have their parents' consent and know how to conduct themselves properly?

Roast Turkey.

Consider the size of your oven before buying the bird. A short and thick hen turkey, weighing from eight to ten pounds, is the best for roasting. Have the butcher draw the sinews in the legs before cutting off the feet. Clean the bird carefully, cut out the neck, leaving the skin of the neck to fold in, making a French breast. Wash the giblets and cook them with the neck. They may be eaten with the meat instead of weeping away in the pan. The sage and onion dressing in most popular, though chestnut, oyster, potato or other fillings may be used. Roast in a small, deep dish with a crust put in the center, and bake the pie until the crust is done. Serve the pie with a gooseberry sauce with the roast.

Roast Goose.

Select a goose with clean, fair skin, plump, deep breast, and bright yellow feet. Singe, clean and wash the goose the same as the turkey, cut off the feet at the first joint, remove the neck to make the French breast. Cut off the pinions and fasten the wings close to the body with steel skewers. Stuff with a good sage and onion dressing. Parboil the giblets and neck until tender, drain and chop coarsely. Add a pound of finely cut rump-steak, a minced onion, a lump of butter, a quarter of a cupful of crumb, pepper, salt and a little of the water. The giblets were boiled in lime, a small, deep dish with a small, stiff brush and a little white soap, rinse thoroughly in cold water, dry with a soft cloth, and the bird is ready for stuffing and trussing. Put a little stuffing in the breast, fold the skin in neatly and sew it up. Do not stuff the bird too full, allow room for the stuffing to swell. Sew the apron neatly, truss the legs and tail piece together, fasten the wings close to the body, butter over the surface lightly, and breast down, in a covered roasting-pan, or cover with brown paper. Use long steel skewers to hold the bird in position. By cooking breast down the juices run into the meat instead of weeping away in the pan. The sage and onion dressing in most popular, though chestnut, oyster, potato or other fillings may be used. Roast in a small, deep dish with a crust put in the center, and bake the pie until the crust is done. Serve the pie with a gooseberry sauce with the roast.
